

Hong Kong: Longitudinal and Synchronic Characterisations of Protest News between 1998 and 2020

RESEARCH GOAL

- Broader goal: mark inconsistencies in English-language newspaper portrayal of civic unrest in Hong Kong, 1998–2020
- This work: zoom in on 2019–2020:
 1. What Hong Kong and western papers discuss about protests
 2. How Hong Kong & western portrayals of Anti-Extradition Law Amendment Bill (ELAB) protests differ
 3. Changes in protest coverage pre- and post-June 2019

KEYWORD DENSITY

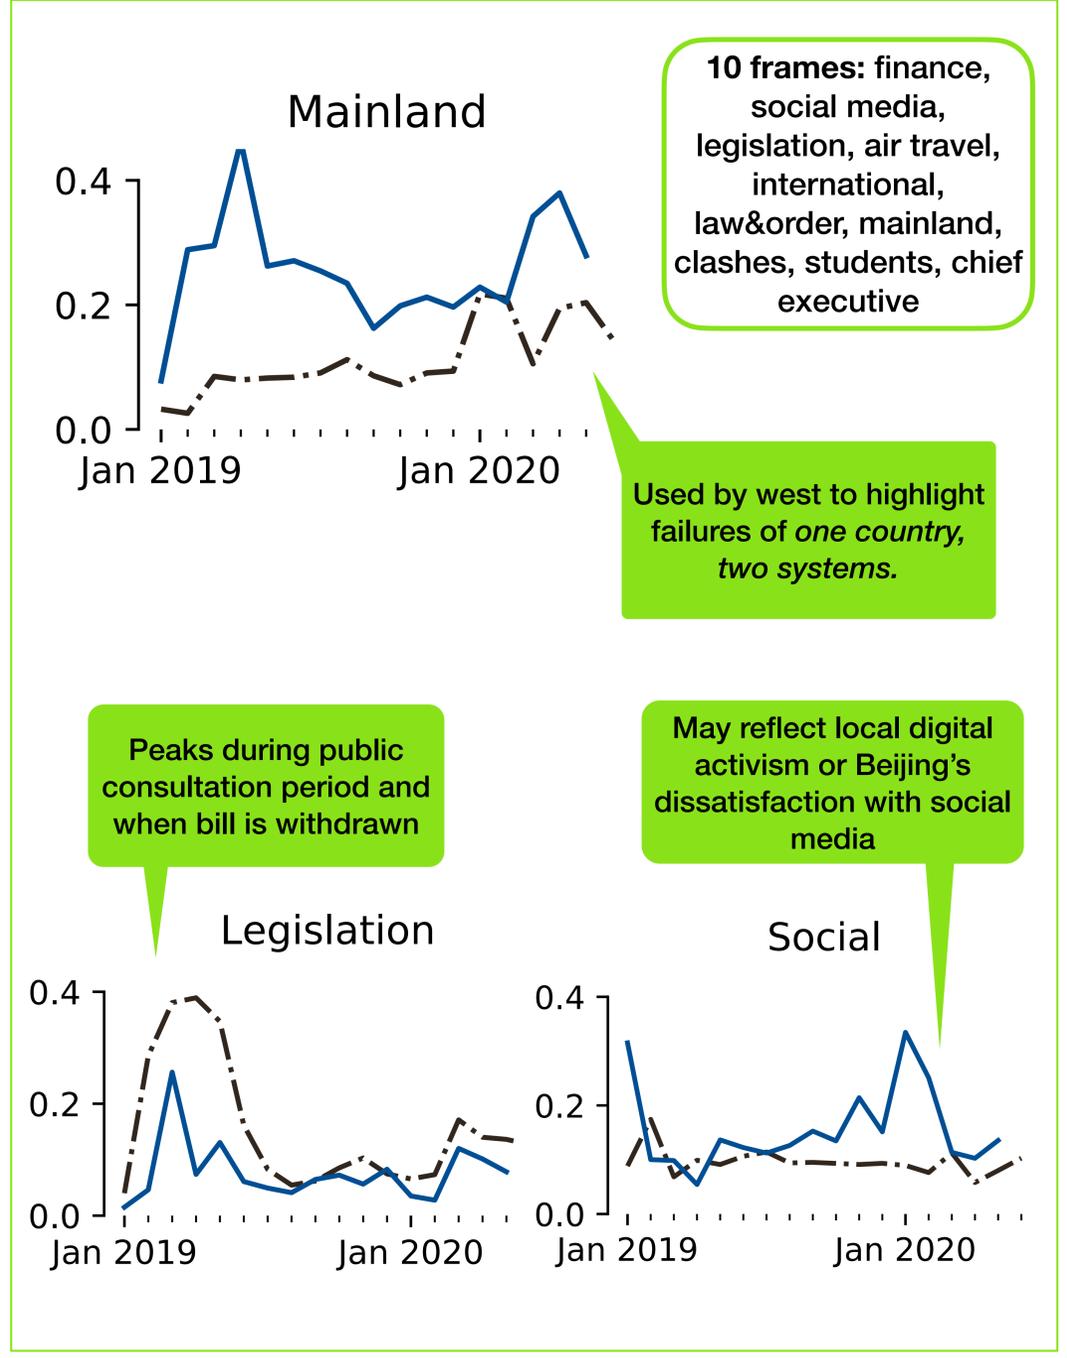

DIFFERENCES IN PORTRAYAL

- DistilBERT sentiment analysis shows
 - Hong Kong sources slightly more negative on average (1.5%)
 - The Times is the most negative (28.3% pos)

Hong Kong-based	Western-based confront (17th percentile)
retreat, intimidated, abused, reminded, understandable, upset, confronting, provoked, regularly, provoke	work, met, acts, spirit, reasons, decisions, trying, voice, intolerable, tsang protest (66th percentile)
rally, sit-ins, demonstration, demonstrators, rallies, campaign, strike, movement, march, demonstrations	demonstrations, umbrella, peaceful, movement, began, streets, activists, mass, 1m, referendum
tensions (63rd percentile)
us-china, tension, war, dispute, uncertainty, heightened, prolonged, worsening, fallout, turmoil	culture, state-owned, protections, tourists, market, base, rise, travel, closer, argued

- Embedding neighborhood differences and percentiles show Hong Kong newspapers' language is more negative and emotional

NEWS FRAMING

HEADLINE ANALYSIS

- 63% have long headlines (≥ 6 words)
- 52% neutral, 32% judgmental, 15% mild

NYT	NYT
The Worst of Times	Hong Kong: A City Divided
FT	SCMP
Xi's Authoritarianism Clashes with West's Democratic Tradition	Hong Kong Extradition Bill: Business Groups Breathe Collective Sigh of Relief Over Government Decision to Delay Legislation
SCMP	SCMP
The Politics, Semantics, and Substance of 'Suspending' a Bill versus 'Withdrawing' It	City University Reveals Bill to Fix Vandalized Campus Will Run Hundreds of Millions of Dollars

CHANGEPOINT ANALYSIS

- Meaning changed for several keywords in June 2019: resistance, severe, riots, confront, confrontation, and terrorism
- Friedman's test: protests did not exacerbate/alter biases in reporting between West and HK
- June 2019 still a pivotal moment (escalating, massive protests labeled as riots by Chief Executive Lam & chief of police)
 - "riots" neighbors before: actions, open, engage, taken
 - "riots" neighbors after: violent, escalated, destructive, anti-government, sparked